BROKE THE BOX OPEN.

He Wanted an Ambulance for Gallagher and Got It.

James Gallagher, of 113 Avenue B. this city, is in St. Catherine's Hospital, Williamsburg, suffering from some disease which the surgeons have not as yet diagnosed.

Accompanied by his brother Daniel, he went to Williamsburg yesterday afternoon and was walking through Grand street, near Metropolitan avenue, when he fell in a faint. There was a long and unsuccessful search for a policeman. There was a police telephone on a pole a few feet from where Gallagher fell and some one tried to open it. He was unable to do so, but a big fellow appeared on the scene with a club and broke off the door of the box. Then the police station was called up and an ambulaince asked for.

After the ambulance had carried the unconscious man to the hospital and the crowd had dispersed, a policeman came along and found the police telephone box broken.

The police are now trying to discover who smashed the box.
